SASA Helping Scotland Grow

Science and Advice for Scottish Agriculture (SASA) is part of the Scottish Government.

We perform a range of functions that you probably thought somebody did – but didn't know who! Including:

- Testing food for pesticides to make sure it is safe;
- Helping to keep serious plant diseases out of Scotland;
- Testing new varieties of potatoes and vegetables and preserving old ones;
- Making sure Scotland's seed crops are healthy;
- Helping fight wildlife crime.

Come and hear about the work we do on your behalf and see our world-class facilities.

There will be displays and demonstrations in the public part of the building, as well as guided tours of the laboratories.

Although booking for the tours is not essential, we recommend it to avoid a wait.

- Tours will be approx. 1hr -
